Objective (s)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Children to play with books, utilizing ICT tools.</li><li>• To engage children in reading for pleasure and enhance their reading habits.</li><li>• Children to view themselves as readers.</li></ul>
Age level (s)	6 – 9
Preferable number of participants	1 student on each PC
Duration	20'
Setting, materials, and preparation	Place: Classroom, library or computer lab
Step -by-step description	<ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1. Electronic books present text to children with an option to listen to it being read aloud, along with sound effects, music, hot spots to click on and animations.</li><li>2. They usually enable children to decide on the amount of assistance they need for reading a text (listening to the whole book or using the voice facility only when stuck, etc.)</li><li>3. Having children read electronic books on a PC, gives young children the pleasure of “reading” a book independently when their reading ability may make this difficult otherwise. Lockwood (2008: 59) stresses that this enhances beginning reader’s confidence, enjoyment and motivation.</li><li>4. Using headphones for listening makes the experience even more like “silent reading.”</li></ol>

Notes to reading promotion facilitator	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Many classrooms nowadays are equipped with at least a couple of PCs. Having one of these PCs on stand-by (e-books ready for reading, headphones plugged in, etc.) and getting students to take turns using it, can be very beneficial.</li></ul>
Suggested follow-up actions/ activities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• The School Library could stock many electronic titles, allowing students to either read them on the library's computers or check them out to read them on their home PCs.</li></ul>
